Letter to Director
NY 65-14603

July 26, 1946
~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

John H. On July 25, 1946, the informant advised that, in accordance with the suggestion made by WILLIAM BROWDER for a meeting at his home on the night of July 24, 1946, this meeting did take place. She stated that on the evening of July 24, at REYNOLDS' invitation, she had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. REYNOLDS at their apartment. When the informant arrived at the REYNOLDS home, she found that he was in an intoxicated condition, and following her arrival, Mrs. REYNOLDS indicated her disapproval of REYNOLDS' anticipated trip to Moscow. She told him he should consider his American heritage, his service in World War I and World War II, and related that he should not get involved in anything that would injure his reputation, and insisted that she accompany him and the informant to the meeting to be held at WILLIAM BROWDER's home.

REYNOLDS acquiesced and stated that immediately upon his arrival he would inform BROWDER that he did not intend to go to Moscow, nor did he intend to become involved in any activities that would injure his reputation as a good American.

At about 8:15 pm, the informant and Mr. and Mrs. REYNOLDS arrived at the home of WILLIAM BROWDER. The only occupants in the home at that time were WILLIAM and EARL BROWDER. However, about an hour later, ROSE, WILLIAM BROWDER's wife, returned and participated in the conversation that ensued thereafter. Continuing, the informant advised that immediately upon arrival, REYNOLDS launched into a long discussion as to his American forbears, his service with the United States Army both in World War I and World War II, and his extreme patriotism. He also indicated that he saw no reason why he should go to Moscow in the immediate future.

The informant stated that EARL was somewhat taken back by the outbursts of REYNOLDS and further by the fact that he was somewhat incoherent and noticeably drunk. EARL's only comment after REYNOLDS' utterances was that he did not see any necessity for an immediate trip by REYNOLDS to Moscow but stated that in all probability it would be advantageous to travel there probably in the early spring of next year. EARL pointed out that this trip would be most advantageous in order that the U. S. SERVICE AND SHIPPING CORPORATION might gain the confidence of Intourist and also obtain a more favorable contractual agreement.

Later in the evening, EARL remarked that he was in rather strained financial conditions and that the institution of his new book and publishing business would probably not show any sizable profit for a period of three years and that in order to build up the business to pay lucrative returns in the future, he would have to spend a sizable amount of money which he did not have at this time.

NY 65-14603

July 26, 1946
~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

REYNOLDS, who by this time had calmed down considerably, asked EARL if a $1,000 a month would carry him through this initial period of establishing his business. At this point, REYNOLDS brought up the matter of the $15,000 that had been put into the capital stock of the U. S. SERVICE AND SHIPPING CORPORATION at the time this firm was incorporated. The informant stated that this is the first time she has ever known of any conversation transpiring between BROWDER and REYNOLDS concerning the above mentioned $15,000. It was the informant's opinion that EARL BROWDER considered the money that had been advanced by REYNOLDS up to the present time more or less of a gratuity on the part of REYNOLDS. However, after this conversation concerning the $15,000, EARL inquired if the U. S. SERVICE AND SHIPPING CORPORATION was in a position to pay this money over to him, and when informed he could have it in any type of payment he desired, EARL was rather pleased to know that the business was in such a shape that they could pay him this amount of money.

At the conclusion of this conversation concerning the payments of money it was decided that the informant would pay the sum of $500 cash in one payment each month to WILLIAM BROWDER, and that the moneys previously advanced, as well as all the money thereafter paid to EARL, would be considered as payments made against the deposit of $15,000 into the treasury of the U. S. SERVICE AND SHIPPING CORPORATION.

The following is a recapitulation of the moneys previously advanced to WILLIAM BROWDER by the informant:

June 10, 1946	$200.00
June 21, 1946	200.00
June 26, 1946	300.00
July 11, 1946	250.00
July 18, 1946	250.00
July 25, 1946	250.00
TOTAL	$1,450.00

It was further agreed that a payment of $550 would be made on August 1 to bring the amount up to $2,000, and that thereafter, sometime in the first week of each succeeding month, the sum of $500 would be paid by the informant to WILLIAM BROWDER until such time as $15,000 had been paid or some other arrangements had been agreed upon.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

In connection with the payment of this money, the informant volunteered that the financial conditions of the company were such that they could readily pay this amount and remarked that the company's account presently had a balance of about $80,000.

The informant was asked how REYNOLDS anticipated carrying these payments on the books of the company and she stated that he had made the tentative suggestion that he would reduce the capital of the company from $20,000 to $5,000, and in that way keep the books straight, and this reduction in capital of $15,000 would be used to pay BROWDER the money.

Informant GREGORY stated that she also learned that the first of six articles that BROWDER is writing for the magazine "NEW REPUBLIC" will appear in next week's issue of this magazine. She also learned that the first article would probably concern EARL's visit to HELSINKI when he was enroute from the United States to Moscow, but did not learn anything else concerning the topic of any of the other articles that would appear in this magazine.

GREGORY stated that because of the number of people present, particularly Mrs. REYNOLDS, and also because of JACK REYNOLDS' inebriated condition, it was not possible for her to engaged in any conversations that might have been of interest to the Bureau. At the termination of the meeting, everyone parted in good spirits. However, EARL BROWDER did not make any arrangements for a future meeting with JACK REYNOLDS or the informant.

It will be recalled that at the meeting held on June 30, 1946 in the home of WILLIAM BROWDER, at which time EARL BROWDER was there, the informant was of the definite opinion that EARL BROWDER was attempting to more or less cut the informant out and approach REYNOLDS directly. She advised, however, that there was no indication of this maneuver on the part of EARL BROWDER on the occasion of the meeting on July 24, 1946.

The informant also advised that, according to a pre-arranged plan, she met WILLIAM BROWDER at 11:00 am on July 25, 1946, at which time she turned over to him $250 in cash.

At the suggestion of the agents, the informant made a casual inquiry of ABRAHAM A. HELLER at this time, and BILL told her that "they" had met HELLER at LaGuardia Airport when he returned from Moscow and that he looked well and was in high spirits. Continuing, BILL advised that HELLER moved into the DISTRIBUTORS GUIDE office and was a "member of the firm". He further stated that both EARL and himself were very happy to be associated with HELLER inasmuch as HELLER has a good understanding of the publishing business, speaks three languages; has a great many influential friends. He further remarked that they are very busy doing the "spade work" of this new venture and that both EARL and himself have been to several publishers and have been very well received.

You may recall that in previous memoranda you were advised that Maurice Halperin, a subject in the Gregory Case, was on so-called "sick leave" from the State Department from the period of March 5 to May 31, 1946, after which he intended to take annual which would carry him through October 1, 1946. In the meantime, Halperin has obtained a position with the American-Jewish Conference in New York City.

It is interesting to note that according to information obtained from a technical surveillance on the residence of Halperin in Washington on July 16, 1946, the State Department has denied Halperin the above sick leave. (X) u

In connection with this disapproval by the State Department, Mrs. Edith Halperin contacted her husband in New York City and read to him a letter addressed to Halperin from the State Department as follows: u

"Under the date of March 5th you submitted your resignation from the Department to be effective May 31st. It is within the province of the State Department to make an administrative determination relative to the granting of sick leave requested at the termination of an appointment. In the light of certain investigation which has been conducted by the Department, it has been administratively determined that the Department will not approve your request for sick leave for the period from March 5th to May 31st. Accordingly, I have instructed the Division of Finance to pay for the period on an annual leave basis. You will, of course, receive a final lump sum payment for any additional leave which has accrued to your credit prior to your resignation from the Department. (X) u

It is believed that this decision by the State Department was made as a result of complete information made available by the Bureau. Fred Lyon concerning Halperin's sick leave status and his jesting remarks made to others concerning it.

ACTION:

None. The foregoing is for your information.

Attached hereto is the technical log containing the above information. (X)

The informant has furnished information to the effect that James Marichuk, an associate of Nathan Brothman, was in contact with the Chiefs of the National Housing Administration in Washington, D. C., and that attempts were being made to infiltrate the agency with individuals who were considered to be "progressives." Specifically, on May 15, 1946, Marichuk was in touch with Will Bishop of the NHA, Washington, D. C. Marichuk advised that Bishop told Marichuk that there were several positions open as "site planners" and asked Marichuk to have "some of the boys" send in form 57 for the positions. This information was considered of sufficient importance to notify the Bureau in order that they might be aware of the fact that "progressives" or liberals were attempting to obtain positions in the NHA.

On June 3, 1946, informant advised that the Brothman, subject in instant case, was working on a project for the Soviet Government. The exact nature of this project is not known, but it is believed that through the services of NY-343 this office will be in a position to ascertain the type of work that Brothman is reported to be doing for the Soviet Government. The technical surveillance is also needed to ascertain the appropriate time whereby a confidential source may be developed to examine the effects of Brothman's office.

yesterday as staff correspondent for a publication that has not yet made its bow to the reading public---'World Report', of which the first number is due to appear at the end of May.

"Mr. Redmont has had a widely varied career in journalism, the highlight of which has been his service in the Pacific with the United States Marine Corps as combat correspondent--a fellow who lived, ate, slept and fought with the rest of the troops, held the rank of sergeant, carried a gun as well as a typewriter, and occasionally got hit.

"Unlike the civilian war correspondents he was working, not for a news agency but for the United States forces; if he chanced on a good story about any individual Marine, it was sent to the boy's home town paper.

"IN FIRST WAVE AT THE MARSHALLS

"His first experience of combat was in the storming of the Marshall Islands in February of 1944 when he went ashore in the first wave; it was also his last, for he was wounded in a Jap air raid twelve days later sent back to base, and eventually invalided out. The assault on the Marshalls was the first blow at the prewar Jap empire; he called it 'one of those fierce little battles that don't last long.'

"Wounded in the foot two weeks later, he was sent to hospital in Pearl Harbour and thence home, where he was finally discharged with one foot a size larger than the other. It only worries him when he wants to buy shoes, he says. He has to buy two pairs to make one.

"He has held most of the jobs to be had on newspapers, but has specialised in international affairs and just before the outbreak of war in 1939 was free-lancing in Europe for 'Current History' and the Sunday department of the 'New York Times'. During 1940 he was in Mexico, working as correspondent for Columbia Broadcasting System and the Star-Hunt News Service. He covered the assassination of Trotsky and the last Mexican presidential elections. More recently, he has been working in the States as director of the news division of the Office of Inter-American Affairs and has been in charge of short-wave news broadcasts to Latin America.

"'World Report', which he now represents, is to be a weekly magazine devoted entirely to reporting, interpreting and forecasting news of international affairs. It will carry no home news and no editorials, and is intended to analyse the essential in world events with complete objectivity. Nothing like it exists at present in American journalism,

Article of Subject REDMONT in "World Report" Concerning
Russian-Argentine Trade Pact

On May 20, 1946, the Buenos Aires English language newspaper "The Standard" and other newspapers carried articles concerning subject REDMONT's article in "World Report" reporting a Russian-Argentine Trade Pact. The article from "The Standard" is quoted as follows:

TOP SECRET

"REPORT RUSSO-ARGENTINE TRADE PACT

"WASHINGTON, Saturday.---

"The 'World Report', a new weekly news magazine dealing with foreign affairs, predicts that 'confidential negotiations' between Colonel Peron and the Russian commercial mission in Argentina 'are almost certain to lead to a diplomatic recognition' between the two countries.

"The magazine, in a special article headlined 'Russia and Argentina closing a trade deal', declared that 'BERNARD REDMONT', staff correspondent of World Report, last week observed two of four Russian ships in Buenos Aires taking on cargoes of hides, wool, ham, bacon, lard and tallow. He learned that Argentina is ready to send a special commercial mission to Russia to arrange an expanded trade between the two countries."

"The article added that trade arrangements are now being worked out between the two countries which will give Russia a valuable market in South America and in time 'will cut into the United States and British commerce with Argentina.' It added that the preliminary details of the agreement were 'worked out in a one hour conversation with Colonel Peron's Buenos Aires apartment,' and forecast that Argentina would make the next move by sending a mission to Russia.

"The magazine called a 'significant indication that diplomatic relations soon be established' the publication in Moscow of Tass dispatches saying that Argentina is eager to establish a contact. It added that Colonel Peron now appears inclined to do business both diplomatically and commercially with Russia. His relations with the United States are cool and Russia's friendship is likely to be useful.

"The article states that the Russians ought to install in Argentina a commercial agency similar to the Amtorg Soviet purchasing commission, and that it proposed opening an agency for the 'Molotov' motorcar to sell it for about 1,250 dollars -- far less than the cost of a United States or British car.

"The magazine's correspondent also reported that the Russians plan to open a tyre factory in Cordoba, and that Argentina hopes to obtain from Russia equipment for drilling oil and other machinery needed for the Y.P.F. He also states that the Russians are studying the idea of establishing a regular steamship line between Russia and Argentina with two sailings monthly. --(A.P.)"

INFORMATION CONCERNING URSULA IRENE WASSERMAN

Statements of Subject WASSERMAN -

On April 18, 1946, Subject URSULA IRENE WASSERMAN was in contact with Miss SUE BURNETT, a representative of the Treasury Department assigned to the American Embassy in Buenos Aires, and advised as follows:

She, WASSERMAN, planned to go to Montevideo before her departure to the United States in order to visit a correspondent friend of hers and contact some publishing houses..

She was having some book backs made by a shop operated by JOSE PAPITICH at Cabildo 1532, Belgrano.

On April 26, 1946, Subject WASSERMAN lunched with SUE BURNETT and CHARLES GUTWIRTH. During the lunch WASSERMAN made the following statements: 2

She, her father, and mother were leaving on April 28 by train for San Blas, the South East corner of Buenos Aires Province near the Patagonia Province border. She said she would remain at an estancia owned by her cousin, Dr. ERWIN WASSERMAN, for ten or twelve days and that she hoped to do some writing while at the estancia. She said she would be joined by her cousins, Dr. ERWIN and MARIO WASSERMAN.

She again asked Miss BURNETT if she knew anything about the Polish Legation, and if the Polish Legation was aligned with the new Polish Government.

GUTWIRTH mentioned the reception the Polish Bank had given for the Soviet Trade Commission, stating that a friend of his had attended, and commented to him that none of the members of the mission spoke any Spanish. WASSERMAN replied that one of the men is very handsome and speaks Spanish. She then added that she had not actually met any of the members, but had heard someone comment about the members of the mission and had seen one member of the mission at a distance. She said she knew the members of the Russian Trade Commission in New York very well, and on one occasion had eaten so much caviar with them that she had lost her taste for caviar.
